Red vs. white – what will take out Australia’s top drop?

Almost 1,900 wines will be swirled, sniffed and sipped at this week’s prestigious Royal Queensland Wine Show (RQWS), supported by Cooper Grace Ward Lawyers, in the battle for one of the 26 trophies up for grabs.

As one of the oldest wine competitions and the first national show held in a capital city each year, the RQWS provides the platform for the nation’s best wine producers to reveal their new season’s vintage.

Attracting more entries and almost 90 new exhibitors than the 2012 competition, this year’s show also introduced new classes for single vineyards wines which fetched almost 130 entries across red and white.

In May this year the RNA introduced a new judging panel and processes in line with new national guidelines set by Australia’s preeminent wine shows to bring uniformity to judging across the country. PJ Charteris will head the team as Chief Judge and work alongside 18 other industry professionals.

To celebrate Australia’s many great wine regions, entries in this year’s competition will be sorted by geographical indicators, which allow for a more comprehensive comparison between ‘like’ wines while providing context for judges.

As a hugely popular and prestigious competition, the RQWS is the ultimate test for winemakers to compete against industry peers and be judged by some of Australia’s most respected and experienced professionals. With so much choice now available, a grand champion trophy from the RQWS is a reliable source of quality for consumers and a valuable way for wineries to set themselves apart from their competitors.

RQWS judging runs from July 1 to 5 at the RNA Showgrounds, with winners announced at a gala awards dinner on July 5.
